

- Spell Save DC = your Netrunner Save DC

Netrunner save dc will be 13 + intelligence mod + any other specific bonus

- Spell Attack = your Cyberattack modifier

Cyber attack mod is your intelligence mod + your cyber decks tier

- Upload Time → Casting Time (usually 1 action unless otherwise noted)
- Duration remains similar
- Damage becomes d6s/d8s/d10s depending on the hack
- Concentration only where appropriate
- "Trace" mechanics become whatever detection system
- Hack has disadvantage to work when the enemy is within 5 feet of you. Essentially meaning they have advantage in the save.
- All normal (control, combat, and coverts) and technical (device and vehicle) quickhacks have a cooldown of 1 turn (meaning you can't use the same quickhack in back to back turns)
- Ultimate quickhacks have a cooldown of 2 turns

Very important: you cannot quickhack an enemy, unless they have been scanned by you, scanning takes a bonus action and the range is based on your optics.

Quick hacks happen at the end of the turn cycle, so if concentration is ended before then, the quickhack is cancelled.

For example: taking a reaction to throw a grenade back or dodge an attack would require a save to hold concentration. The difficulty of the save is determined by the hindrance.

Quick hack slots

Every cyber deck has a certain amount of quick hack slots for the various categories

For example one may have 4 normal slots, one ultimate slot and one technical slot.

Some may be different or offer special benefits.

Normal - covert, combat and control

Technical - device and vehicle

Ultimate - ultimate

Ram

Your starting ram is determined by your int mod x 2

You can gain more ram by getting more netrunner perks and by getting better cyber decks.

You regain 1 ram per turn in combat equal to your cyber decks tier. (you do not gain ram outside of combat unless you long rest or are given it)

You can also regain ram with cyber deck effects and long rests

Special note

When you use a particular quickhack as an action, you may apply it to as many enemies as you would like. However, each target still costs the same amount of RAM to hit, so if you over heat 3 enemies that'll be 9 RAM.

Unless a perk says to override this, this is true for all hacks, even ultimate ones.
